

Heroless

The Fall of man begins with Trinity,
The world Loses it's heroes,
And the Wrath of the Death Guards,
It Begins ...

Prologue.

"When the world has no heroes to turn to...what happens next?"

The light was dim, the night silent, the fog thick, and the ground cold. The ones who turned against the people were coming, and everything they wished happened. They rode atop black stallions and crushed any who opposed them. They were also known as the rulers of Trinity.

The people had no help and tried many times to overthrow the Death Guard, but were never successful. Still, people tried, but unlike other places, they didn't have a hero. And as time passed that, too, changed. The heroes of the world who fought for justice were no more.

Some people still did not want to accept their fate. They were punished if the Death Guard ever found out. The land of Trinity was the start, and it would have to be the end. Yet, that end wasn't guaranteed. The Death Guard only existed in Trinity, but in other places similar evils have started. The World was run by darkness...